kindles learning

Quitting his teaching job for his 10th birthday, four years of law and business, studying at Crown Point, and basic education in the school of business. The man, now 21, is happy, giving a successful account of the day, saying it was a good day. Good, better, the following night, at 10:00, and another week, the school will have a good (the school) 21, 1960.

impact

It doesn't take long for a football team to become a part of the school's identity. The football team's impact on the school is felt in many ways. The team's success on the field is a source of pride for the school, and the team's behavior off the field is a reflection of the school's values. Above: An empty hall marks the seconds before the afternoon break between classes. Below: After the first bell has rung the halls turn into mass confusion as students hurriedly go to their next classes. Left: A warning sign cautions motorists to be careful as they pass through the school zone.

Daily schedule begins early as students arrive sleepy-eyed

An early rise, a hurried breakfast, and a hasty exit typify the start of the morning for most students. The pupils arrive by foot, car, and bus from within the city limits and the surrounding townships. In the chaos, which may result from the attempts to arrive at school on time, the problems of the previous day fade and the new day is contemplated with anticipation.

English provides structural foundation for modern and ancient language classes

Second year French student Becky Beasley improves her French accent with help from Mrs. Catherine Coffman.

Pointing out a well-known site in Italy is first year Latin student Brian Martin while classmate Amanda Lewis translates a passage from her book, which tells historical facts about the point on the map.

Life in the Atomic Age has not left CPHS students unaffected. Because the world is constantly growing smaller, communications and understanding between the citizens of one country with those of another must improve. As language students attempt to polish their French accents or translate an English sentence into Spanish, they are learning of foreign problems and history. Latin is chosen by those who wish to study the Roman Empire whose influence can still be recognized in many judicial and governmental systems today. English, of course, must be perfected before it is possible to master a foreign language. A three-year course is compulsory at Crown Point High School. Seniors who are preparing for college learn the fundamentals of good writing in fourth year English.

 Dialects improve as students participate in French panel discussions.

After combining a mixture of various chemicals, Jerry Ross inspects his solution and strives to find an answer to his chemistry problem.

Essential courses

The facilities at Crown Point High School offer students ample opportunity for a broad scientific education. Health and safety provides a basic understanding of human anatomy for freshmen while sophomores probe the mysteries of plant and animal life in biology. Industrious juniors found themselves tinkering with test tubes, equations, and Bunsen burners in the chemistry lab. This year chemistry enrollment reached a new peak with eight full classes. The climax of the venture into discoveries come in the senior year with physics, the study of the properties of matter and energy.

Archaeologists studying an ancient relic at the museum? Not exactly, rather, Kathy Schmelzer, Dove Rogers, and Melinda Jewett view the skeleton of a baby lamb.

create foundation for tomorrow's scientists

The permeating odors of sulfur and manganese dioxide are prevalent throughout the school as chemistry students engage in thought provoking experiments. Seemingly amazed by the occuring reaction is Glenn Sontner.

Above: The mechanics of the power plant become meaningful to S. Nywening and J. Lurtz as Mr. Saylor gives an explanation. Below: The study of human anatomy captivates a sophomore biology class. Presenting a lecture on the human skull is student teacher, Mr. Herbst.

In deep concentration as he hits each key with accuracy during a timed writing is Ted Cummings. Timed writings are a common means of testing students enrolled in both beginning and advanced typing classes.

Chalkboard illustrations of assigned homework problems done by Mr. Isley facilitate learning in first year algebra classes.

Through courses of business and mathematics, students kept alert minds during the year. Starting with introductory algebra, progressing to geometry, advanced algebra, and senior math pupils were acquainted with equations, proofs, and calculus. Others, choosing commercial classes, began with general business and advanced to typing and shorthand. Customer approach was taught in advertising, and mathematical problems were solved in business math and bookkeeping. A final class of business machines challenged upperclassmen.

Good citizenship practiced daily in school and community life

Listening attentively to a lecture in one of Mr. Kimble's civics classes are Sandi Bailey and Al Bednor.

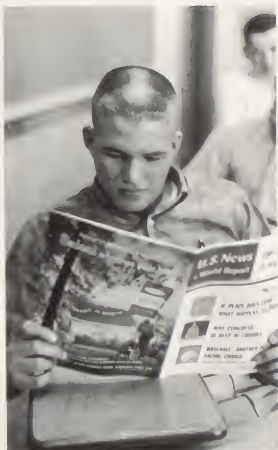

The air of heated political discussions was predominate in the Crown Point social studies classes throughout this national election year. The students enrolled in government courses took an active part in voting and political policies and became acquainted with the qualifications of the various candidates.

In geography classes, the pupils were presented with the important characteristics of diverse nations, and the role they play in a world constantly changing at an accelerated pace. The juniors were confronted with the problems of our nation's early development in U.S. history classes.

At an angle familiar to most students, Mrs. Dunn lectures on social over-head and government expenditures.

Sociology has proved to be a favored subject with seniors. A bit of humor provides a change of pace during a discussion.

Keeping up with current events is CPHS student Rusty Yarnell. Weekly and bi-weekly news magazines are distributed in most social studies classes.

Art and Home Ec teach skills for practical, pleasurable life

Above: As Pat Demmon concentrates on making an article of clothing, Tina Kowall has her material checked by Mrs. Metz. Below: Producing a still life drawing of an autumn display is Becky Beasley, second year art student. Left: Using the techniques learned in foods class, Charlotte Cordell rolls the pie crust while Choron Phillips assists her.

As the potter's wheel spins rapidly, Bill Blum executes the tedious process of shaping a clay vessel.

The hum of singing sewing machines accompanied by the warm aura of freshly baked bread were familiar to students as they traveled past the home economics rooms. Sewing, culinary skills, child care, and interior decorating were the offered subjects which will eventually prove to be invaluable as students plan for their own homes.

A slash of paint concluded a student's masterpiece as an amorphous bulk of clay was transformed by the scapel into a contemporary sculpture. Compliments were frequently reiterated as students' work improved with each accomplishment in the many diverse fields of art.

Putting the finishing touches on his art project is first year art student Tom Baner.

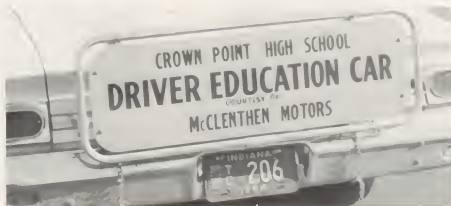

Arc welding becomes an important feature of shop class as students prepare for an industrial vocation.

Shop and drivers' training stress importance of safety

The drivers' training teachers answer any questions a CPHS student may have. Janie Sue Fadamski hurries to class for last minute instructions before taking the wheel.

Each year the drivers' training classes are supplied with a new car by one of the local automobile dealers.

Intricate planning and a dash of imagination results in the construction of a miniature home during a wood shop class. Other industrial arts students, enrolled in mechanical drawing, learn to sketch the essential parts of machines while an electronics student assembles a transistor radio. Other courses offered in the shop department included machine shop, auto mechanics, welding, and architectural drawing. Boys who graduate with industrial arts majors are qualified for careers in carpentry, mechanics, or architecture.

The CPHS Driver Education courses are constructed for the purpose of training prospective student drivers. Along with basic safe driving habits, students are taught the parts and operation of the gasoline engine. A student who has successfully completed the state-approved course is eligible to receive his driver's license when he reaches the age of sixteen years and one month. Statistics prove that these drivers are among the safest in the teenage class.

Every drivers' training student operates a car once a week and his driving is evaluated. Mr. Dean explains mistakes to Dave Rogers.

Spotting freshman gym student, John Biegel, as he executes a shoulder stand on the parallel bars, is student teacher, Mr. Sullivan.

Health and happiness go hand in hand for active gym students

Side straddle hops and roll-overs are familiar terms to physical education students. The realization of physically strong CPHS bodies is the goal of the Physical Education Department, and facilities available for the two year course are designed to provide the students with a well-rounded physical exercise program. Among the many phases of the program are track, basketball, marching, gymnastics, and square dancing.

Not only are the muscles toned but mental alertness is also improved through competitive sports. After the completion of the two-year course, qualified juniors and seniors are given the opportunity to participate as student instructors.

Crown Point High School has one of the outstanding intramural programs in the area. Lunchtime activities range from checkers to football and are available for participation by any interested student. Two of the most popular activities are the mixed volleyball competition and the Intercross Tourney. Lunch hour individual champions, winning-team members and first runners-up are awarded felt championship banners signifying their victories. Members of the teams winning the Intercross Tourney receive small trophies.

Preliminary exercises take many forms. The combination of speed and coordination helps gym students to climb ropes.

Lunchtime means food, fun time at Crown Point

The shrill sound of the eleven o'clock bell is well acknowledged as students find themselves caught up in the frenzied rush to the cafeteria lunch line. Lunch hour activities are as diverse as the individuals who participate. For those interested in sports, the Crown Point High School intramural program provides an outlet for both talented skills and earnest attempts. Lunch hour is a good time to do some last minute cramming for an afternoon test or to finish an assignment. For the carefree, the recreation area provides a cheery atmosphere for friendly conversation.

Crown Point High School students receive a well-balanced meal through the state lunch program. Appeasing his appetite is freshman Dave Graper.

Many varieties of ice cream are sold by the Student Council. Theresa Hudock finds an ice cream sandwich to be a tasty dessert.

Costa Rican AFS student becomes one of many

Above: Lunchtime is a period of leisure for everyone including foreign exchange student Maria Monge. To the amazement of the brown-eyed Costa Rican, American food proved to be quite appetizing. Below: Many hours of concentrated study on the basics of the English language consume the free time of the AFS student.

For the fifth consecutive year, Crown Point High School has participated in the American Field Service Exchange Program. This program enables a student from a foreign country to spend a year with an American family while he attends high school. This arrangement promotes a better understanding among the future leaders of the world's diverse nations. American students are also able to participate in the AFS program. Young people are given the opportunity of spending a summer abroad with a European family, sharing in their way of life.

Coming from the warm climate of Palmares, Costa Rica, this year's foreign exchange student, Maria Monge, experienced the cold snowy Indiana winters for the first time. She was familiarized with American family life through her stay with the Bernard A. Carstens family. She helped to broaden the international understanding of CPHS students as she gave speeches concerning the customs of her home country.

Courses studied by Maria included English, advanced mathematics, American history, speech and home economics.

enthusiastic American teens

"Bull in a China Shop," by C. B. Gilford, was a comedy in three acts presented by the Junior Class of '65. It concerned six old spinsters who lived across the street from a handsome detective (Terry VanSlyke). In order to get his attention, they committed two murders and summoned the detective for investigation. Rat-poisoning was the method used, and it wasn't hard to trace the guilt to the old ladies. The murderer (Jackie Mills) was considered the heroine when the handsome detective took her to jail.

Under the direction of Mr. Richard Gordon, the Senior Class presented the play entitled "Rest Assured," by Donald Payton. This comedy encompassed the world of a very wealthy businessman (Paul Frame) who had little time for his family and only thought about his money. This led to serious complications, for he entered into a realistic dreamworld in which he was haunted by the ghost of a poor Italian (Dave Hammett). When he awoke, his whole outlook on life was changed and his reverence for the dollar was replaced by a new-found devotion to his family.

Students gaze on as the gallant Trojan horse is burned in effigy during the traditional bonfire which took place on the eve of Homecoming.

Trojan horse blazes at bonfire festivity as victory prediction

Signaling for a right flank with his baton and whistle at the gala Homecoming parade is the Marching Bulldogs' drum major, Jerry Schulte.

Homecoming was preceded by weeks of planning and preparation. The two-night celebration started with the annual bonfire as students watched the Trojan horse consumed by flames to predict a Homecoming victory. Spirits soared as fans went snake dancing around town.

The height of enthusiasm was reached the following night at the Homecoming parade and game. The Marching Bulldogs led the gala parade as cheerleaders, class cars, and Homecoming Queen candidates followed. As the parade drew to an end the football team hit the field. In the pigskin contest with the Highland Trojans the Bulldogs showed adamant determination as they came out victorious. As the victory bell still rang, students left for the "Memories" dance where the crowning of the Homecoming Queen and Mr. Football completed the festivities for Homecoming '64.

"String up those lanterns and please hurry!" Commands similar to this one, always followed by a "please hurry!" phrase were familiar to juniors as they transformed Taft Cafeteria into a land of oriental fascination. It seemed that months of intricate planning had resulted in a slight bit of confusion but excited determination finally produced the desired result. "Sayanara" was the beautifully expressed farewell to seniors. Romantic music added to the exatic atmosphere as memories of a wonderful year passed through the hearts of all present. The Grand March signified that the prom was nearing its end. Its theme began to take on a deeper meaning for seniors as they realized this was another "last."

Dancing to the music of the Moon-glows are M. Porter and J. Luers.

Selected by the 1964 seniors to reign over prom festivities were Queen Peggy Davis and King Lonm Mowry.

Frenzied commotion and keen anticipation prevailed at the crowning moments of the queens who sparked the many social events of the year. In the fall the naming of the Homecoming Queen and Mr. Football climaxed the Homecoming festivities. The senior candidates for these honors were nominated by the Booster Club members. The Christmas holidays were celebrated at the PTA-sponsored Holly Hop where four girls competed for the crown. In February, roses were presented to the Hi-Y Sweetheart who was elected by members of the club. The Sunshine Society crowned its Rose Queen who reigned over the first spring dance of the season. Climaxing a year's activities was the Junior-Senior Prom held in May where a senior king and queen were chosen by their classmates to reign over their last high school prom.

Candidates for Holly Hop Queen were selected at special class meetings. Queen Candy Murray and her court Mary Neal, Pauline Doty, and Jay Zieseness reigned over the Christmas festivities where tinseled Christmas trees lined a Candy Cane Lane.

Final year ends with memories that will linger

During the sophomore year the Class of 1965 selected blue and white class sweaters. Throughout the year the sweaters could be spotted by walking down senior halls which were always bustling with activity. Talking between classes are Barb Blum and Charlie Lewis.

A senior year is a zenith of emotions—relief because this is the last of twelve education-packed years, anticipation of what the future holds, and awareness that adulthood is lurking around the corner. The Class of 1965 boasted with pride as they flaunted glistening class rings, colonial blue cardigans, and festively-painted cords.

Last minute senior parties seemed to organize themselves whenever a few upper-classmen got together. The tremendous class spirit was evident at all school functions—assemblies, athletic events, intramurals, and dances. The class was honored at the last home basketball game with a flashy precision routine by the varsity cadettes.

in activities

A broad range of organizations provide an outlet for students to vary the pace of academic routine. With a student body numbering more than fifteen hundred, the clubs must span a wide variety of tastes and interests. Meeting this goal, the organizations allow for the development of leadership, promote harmonious relationships, and practical application of classroom experiences. Only through active memberships can a club fully serve its purpose.

THIRD ROW: M. Neal, C. Colyer, M. Fifield, S. Jallief, B. Beasley, S. Smalik, P. Fatch, J. Clark. TOP ROW: S. Doty, C. Viers, J. Schafer, J. Alm, J. Isley, K. Diddie, J. Carter, P. Doty, G. Paarlberg.

Class representatives voice student opinion at bi-weekly meetings

Through the Student Council representatives, students had a voice in their school government. Representatives are selected annually by members of the different classes. Extensive campaigning and party spirit preceded the election of Council officers. During the summer, the officers attended a Student Council workshop at Indiana University. Bill Logan and Diane Corbin had a part in the formation of the Intercounty Council which is composed of all high schools in Lake County. This was established for the purpose of exchanging and coordinating ideas.

The legislative problems of CPHS are only a few of the issues discussed by the Student Council. Such controversial matters as the dress code, driving regulations, and the dances fill the Council's agenda. The governing body also strived to attain an atmosphere of respect towards the faculty members, school property and administrators. Another function of this legislative group is to encourage high scholastic achievements by establishing the honor roll system and having a special award day for those attaining honor roll grades throughout the year.

Student Council officers for 1965 were Jackie Mills, Bill Logan, Diane Corbin, and Chuck Lee.

Topics ranging from the dress code to driving regulations are discussed at the bi-weekly Student Council meetings. A motion is brought before this governing body by sophomore Becky Beasley.

SAFE-DIVING COMMITTEE—BOTTOM ROW: M. Bawman, G. Ross, T. Dickinson, B. Belanger, J. Morrison, L. Hawk. SECOND ROW: D. Monoch,

At the helm of the Senior Class were officers Andy Kacmar, Dave Austin, Linda Seramur, Candy Murray.

The long-awaited year of 1965 finally arrived and seniors assumed authority as they accepted leadership responsibilities. Producing a play, selecting name cards and announcements, presenting a class gift, and guiding unacquainted underclassmen were just a few duties of the Senior Class. The members of this class felt the symptoms of "senioritis" as diplomas and the future came within reach.

After two years of hesitation and uncertainty, members of the Junior Class stood proudly as they assumed leadership in CPHS. Members carefully prepared an unforgettable prom for the seniors. To meet the expense, juniors produced a play, sponsored a dance, and peddled various concessions at football games.

Having been indoctrinated with life at CPHS, important decision making faced sophomores as they were confronted with their first class project—the selection of class rings. In the spring, the selection of class sweaters brought on even greater anticipation of the day when "sophs" would become upperclassmen.

During the first few weeks of school, freshmen could be identified by the characteristic nervous smiles and confused looks which seemed to say "We're lost." With guidance granted by wiser upperclassmen, the frosh groped through their first weeks of school and soon found their identity as they planned for their class party.

Starting their first year as class officers were freshmen Nick Licina, Ted Pierce, Terry Patz, Gloria Pigue.

Class officers show characteristic traits of responsibility and leadership

Honorary organizations recognize excellence

National Honor Society officers were Steve Veda, Mary Klinedarf, George Heintz, Kim Costin, Pam Shields, Beda Bathwell, Debbie Deman.

The Quill and Scroll International Journalism Honorary Society is an active counterpart of the Inklings and Excalibur publication staffs. Outstanding journalists who serve for two or more semesters qualify for membership in the honorary guided by Miss Linda Brandt, new publications advisor. The annual induction takes place during the May Banquet at which new publications editors and staff members are also announced. Quill and Scroll members are awarded gold pins for their accomplishments and a year's subscription to the Society's magazine. Among the members of this year's organization are the editors of both the school's publications.

The National Honor Society is comprised of the top fifteen per cent of the senior class and the upper five per cent of the junior class. These select students are chosen annually by the faculty on the basis of their scholastic achievement, leadership, and character qualities.

Throughout the year, the National Honor Society under the sponsorship of Miss Alice Lauterbur, conducted several academic programs which stimulated the underclassmen to produce to the best of their ability. One of these incentives was the festive Christmas party which included all honor roll students and society members. This year, as in previous years, the organization gave a special Yule party for all graduate members of the local chapter. The induction of the new members, the senior scholarship program, and a recognition evening for those consistently on the honor roll completed the activities for '64-'65.

QUILL AND SCROLL—Phyllis White, Larry Lain, LeVeda Longfellow, Barb Likens.

Merit semi-finalist Jane Isley takes great pride and interest in her academic accomplishments.

Senior scholar George Heintz represented Crown Point High School at the United Nations. His trip was sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Outstanding pupils respected for achievements

Three boys are selected each month to represent either the Rotarians or Kiwanians at their weekly banquets. The junior Rotarians and Kiwanians are selected principally on the basis of their leadership and academic ability. The boy must be in the upper half of his class and successful in his chosen field.

Other honors were achieved by various Crown Point students. Seven senior girls and four senior boys with avid interests in government were chosen as representatives to Girls' and Boys' State. Here they put into practical use their knowledge about politics. Beginning with primaries and continuing through a hectic week of campaigning and elections, they participated in actual governmental operations. Another student was picked for a trip sponsored by the League of Women Voters. During one week, the delegate traveled from Washington D.C. to New York City and visited foreign embassies, the United States Congress, and the United Nations. The World Affairs delegate went to Cincinnati to study Latin America. As with the other delegates, the World Affairs student became a more responsible citizen.

Reviewing some verb tenses learned in first year French are Jewell Everett and Sherry King.

Language clubs promote educational recreation

"O Tempora! O Mores!" was a popular phrase throughout the Roman Empire. Students of CPHS may become acquainted with the classical reign of kings and emperors by participating in the Latin Club. A member of the Junior Classical League, this club discusses the history, culture and customs of the once glorious kingdom and engages in district, state, and national meetings. The most important club activity was the annual spring banquet where the second and third year students appeared in the apparel of true Roman senators and mistresses. It was at this function the first year students were given their initial insight in regards to Roman spirit by serving the dinner clad in the tunics of slaves.

A fuller understanding of foreign nations is the goal of the Modern Language Club. French students went on a field trip to the Chicago Art Institute where they studied the work of French impressionists. Spanish and French traditions were reflected in the festive Christmas party and in the decorations adorning the language rooms. Activities for the year were completed in the spring with a banquet.

Examining art work done in class are Art Club officers Jean Baum, Jane Carter, and Eric Bresser.

Creativeness hailed by Art, Drama Clubs' active membership

For aspiring, young artists this year's Art Club was the target of interest. As always the club helped the Student Council decorate the school for the Christmas season by painting the windows. The club's docket included a trip to the Art Institute in Chicago, a preview of the Northern Indiana Art Show in early spring, and as a finale a "sketch picnic" also held in the spring. The officers of this year's Art Club were President Jane Carter, Vice-president Eric Bresser, and Secretary-Treasurer Jeanne Baum.

The Drama Club offered an outlet for the acting abilities of the budding actors and actresses in CPHS. The members presented each meeting's entertainment which ranged from humorous monologues to serious poetry. Besides going to a play for enjoyment the members received points for such viewings. Points were also given for attendance at meetings and stage craft. Many members participated in the club play "Jenny Kissed Me". The officers were President Steve Golden, Secretary Jeanne Baum, and Treasurer Kathy Burrell.

The Future Teachers of America provide students with an opportunity for valuable experience in the teaching profession. To obtain this background students graded papers, listened to guest speakers, and viewed educational films. At the senior honor assembly a scholarship was awarded to the outstanding senior member.

The Future Business Leaders of America was an organization open to students interested in the field of business. Members acquired the basic fundamentals of overhead profit and loss.

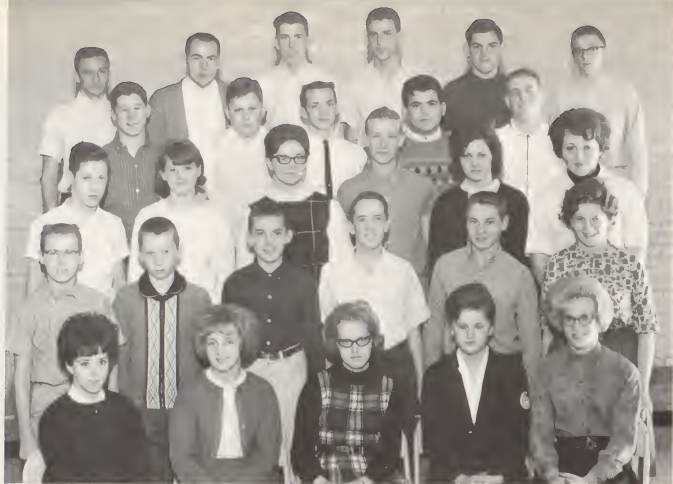

Girls of the Future Homemakers of America prepared for their future roles as they learned proper home management and family care. Additional arts of flower arranging and basket weaving were taught. A fashion show held in the spring rounded out the activities for the year.

Opportunity for the investigation of modern agricultural techniques is opened by the Future Farmers of America. Under the guidance of Mr. Leon Dean, members participated in several judging contests which challenged their knowledge of farming skills.

Striving for a better understanding of the phenomena of nature, members of the Biology Club engaged in various phases of fundamental experiments. This year the club took a predominant interest in dissection and the characteristics of various blood types.

Girls with an eye on nursing for a future occupation were greatly benefited by the Health Careers Club. This year the members were particularly interested in physical and occupational therapy. Known also as a service organization, the girls designed Christmas decorations for hospitals.

The Audio Visual Club is one of the invaluable service organizations of CPHS. In addition to operating and delivering the equipment, the members care for the filmstrips, tape recorders, and record players. The club gives its members experience for the future and provides the school with vital teaching aids.

Health Careers Club provides Kathy Abraham and Barb Likens with preliminary and fundamental knowledge of nursing.

to climax fall agenda

"Service with a smile" might well be the motto of the Sunshine Society and the Hi-Y. These two clubs united in October on a "bundle day" for a door-to-door collection of clothes for the indigent. They collaborated again in November as they chose on appropriate theme, "Harvest Moon", for their annual formal. The Society sold candy and donated the profits to the State Sunshine Charity Project, the Riley Hospital Fund. Thanksgiving baskets were filled and distributed to families in the community. Christmas favors were presented to teachers and Valentine treats were delivered to the Convalescent Home.

Completing the year was the May Breakfast; here the induction of new officers took place and high point girls in each class received recognition.

Hi-Y members were selected in their sophomore year on the basis of citizenship. They collected funds for the March of Dimes and assisted football and basketball fans as they parked cars at all home games.

Whenever a Sunshine activity rolled around you could be sure that officer Katy Maflit, Pam Schweitzer, Pam Cox, Janna Clark, and Merrill Everett were around to pitch in a helping hand.

Newly named varsity football co-captains Randy Harris and Gary Holloway shake hands with Head Coach Dave Schaeffer and John Mihos. The golden football was awarded to Ron Pierce for being named most valuable player.

This year the Girls' Athletic Association participated in the regular sports of baseball, basketball, and volleyball while also attending conference clinics for track and gymnastics. The club sponsored its annual carnival at which various organizations and classes sponsored booths.

Athletic letters were earned in all school sports and recipients of these were eligible for membership in the Lettermen's Club. All members who have majored in two or more sports were conspicuous as they proudly displayed their letters and chevrons on the burgundy pullovers purchased for them by the club.

The Speech and Debate Club's purpose is to encourage students in the field of public speaking. The organization participated in the Calumet Forensic League and organized the annual Student Legislative Assembly in the spring.

Crown Prince George, the official mascot, makes appearances at all home football and basketball games.

Booster Club awarded best block trophy at Christmas tournament

The chief goal of the Booster Club is to encourage students to support and attend all athletic events of Crown Point High School teams. To promote this school spirit and interest, season basketball tickets were sold to the club members and only these ticket holders were allowed to sit in the reserved block. This year's block, as those in previous years, proved to be one of the outstanding in the area. With red and white capes, white gloves, and Bulldog mascot, the block won the trophy for the best cheering section at the Lake County Christmas Tourney. The essential qualities of a victorious block, organization, cooperation, and good sportsmanship on the part of all fans, players, and coaches, were recognized by the supporting block.

This year the Booster Club attempted to increase their support of the minor sports teams. A poster committee was appointed, and fan busses traveled to several cross country, track and baseball events.

Supplying pep and personality as they encourage enthusiastic support of the athletic teams were three cheerleading squads led by mascot Crown Prince George.

The varsity and reserve cheerleaders were selected through a difficult screening process. In the initial elimination tryouts, ten girls were chosen by the faculty on the basis of their ability, personality, and grades. As each Student Council candidate gave his address during a special assembly, ten girls sat tensely awaiting the opportunity to prove their proficiency. Returns from the cheerleading election were received the following day.

The eight cheerleaders immediately scheduled summer practice sessions and made arrangements for the purchase of additional uniforms. Two reserve cheerleaders, Jane Pugh and Pam Cox, acquired several novel yells when they attended a cheerleading camp in Hartland, Michigan.

Early in the fall a freshman cheerleading squad was selected by members of the class. From the first autumn pep session to the time of the last tourney basketball game, yell leaders found themselves in a dizzying flurry as they capably represented our school at all football and basketball contests.

Cheerleaders cultivate bulldog enthusiasm

Promoting school spirit and leading the Bulldogs to victory are varsity cheerleaders Linda Seramur, Pauline Doty, Peggy Vinnedge, and Jeanne Haniford.

Practicing weekly the cheers they will execute at the Friday night games is just one of the many responsibilities of varsity cheerleaders Jeanne Haniford, Linda Seramur, Pauline Doty, and Peggy Vinnedge.

Vocalists strive for musical perfection

With eyes fixed on the director, A Cappella members, Gloria Dankoff and Linda Yankey, practice for a concert.

The A Cappella choir began its 1964-65 schedule with annual "Prevue" concert. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Alfred Richter, and the symphonic band then collaborated to present the Christmas Concert. Two programs, the Spring Concert and the Choral Festival, were presented near the end of the school year. Six area schools were invited to participate in the latter event. The climax of the year's activities was the annual operetta; the 1965 performance was Roger and Hammerstein's "Carousel." In addition to the operetta and various concerts, the choir sings at the Thanksgiving and Christmas convocations. Many of the more talented and hard-working students participated in annual state-wide music contests as soloists or members of ensembles. The two largest ensembles within the A Cappella are the Swing Choir and the Madrigals.

The South Pacific backdrop had just been finished that afternoon and the pungent odor of paint still faintly lingered in the air. Members of the prop committee hastened about as they carried in many almost forgotten items. Meanwhile as make-up artists applied grease paint to the faces of cast members, mixed emotions ran through the minds of all. Memories of the tedious weeks of practice, the times that were good, and the times that were not so smooth seemed to fade into the background as curtain time drew nigh.

Any fears or frustrations were soon alleviated as applause resounded throughout the gym in response to strains of "Some Enchanted Evening" and "Bali-Hai." The many hours that made South Pacific a success paid off as the choir was bestowed the honor of presenting repeat performances at Akron and Remington, Ind.

1965 CROWN POINT HIGH SCHOOL SYMPHONIC BAND

Unpolished horns and faded shakers are the tools of summer marching band members as they head for the practice field. A summer filled with numerous rehearsals and parades was climaxed with a performance at the Indiana State Fair where the band took ninth place in the competition. In the fall, football fans viewed the precision marching formations executed during game halftimes.

At the termination of the football season, the Symphonic Band took over and presented the Pop Concert, Christmas Concert, and Guest Artist Concert which featured a noted musician. This year the Symphonic Band was one of five high school bands selected from the nation to appear in concert at the Midwest Band Clinic. From a critical audience of some 3,000 band directors, the Bulldogs received a standing ovation—a rarely bestowed honor for excellence at this clinic.

Included also in the band program is the Concert Band which is composed of freshmen preparing for membership in the varsity band. Other divisions of the instrumental department, the Dixieland Band and Dance Band, work independently to provide music for community organizations while the Pep Band plays at all home basketball games.

"And here come the Crown Point Marching Bulldogs from Lake County!" This was the proclamation which introduced the band to the thousands of onlookers who jammed the grandstand at the 1964 Indiana State Fair. The Bulldogs were ready to go! They had spent seemingly interminable hours rehearsing the three-minute performance until they reached their pinnacle of perfection. The day preceding the contest was perhaps the busiest for band members. There had been the final practice during which the last polishing touch was added. The odds were candidly presented and a pep talk sent spirits soaring to the culmination point. The evening was occupied with final preparations such as polishing instruments, scrubbing boots, and separating shakers.

By six o'clock the next morning the Marching Bulldogs, followed by the gayly decorated cars of band boosters, were headed for Indianapolis. At last came the final test. High-stepping performers formed a spectacular sight when they hit the field with a winning combination of goose steps, toreador steps and precision marching. The Marching Bulldogs were honored with a standing ovation from the thousands of bystanders. Once more the band had proven to be among the greatest as they captured the ninth-place trophy.

precision routines

The spirited varsity cadettes and twirlers of Crown Point High School, provide the final touch of perfection to the Marching Bulldogs. Last spring ten new cadettes were added to the cadette corps as a result of elimination tryouts. The groups perform their high-stepping precision drills to the incisive medleys of classical and popular tunes played by the band. The general appearance and overall flash of the entire band is accentuated by the cadettes' swishing red and white shakers and the glittering batons of the twirlers. The thirty cadettes and four twirlers accompanied the band to parades, marching contests, home football games, and special festivals which took place throughout the year. This year, besides performing at the marching band contest at the Indiana State Fair in August, the cadettes and twirlers marched in the Lake County Fair, the pop concert, and at two basketball games.

The reserve cadettes and twirlers executed their routines to the music of the Concert Band. It is in this group that the girls gain the basic fundamentals and experience to prepare them for advancement to the Varsity Cadette Corps. The reserve unit performed at the Lake County Fair, in the Homecoming parade and at one basketball game.

Marching with the reserve band and cadettes and working for a spot on the varsity squad for next year are twirlers P. Harst, K. Schrum, L. Hoshaw, and P. Brown.

Weekly publication serves students and faculty

Included in the Publications Department is a weekly newspaper, the Inklings. Through the efforts of a determined staff, the newspaper remains one of the few weekly school papers in the state. Five editors, Larry Lain, Phyllis White, Barbara Likens, Katie Lett, and Terry Cox worked diligently with a staff of nearly seventy-five members to write and re-write copy, headlines, cutlines and lay out pages.

In addition to routine CPHS news, the Inklings was host to many special articles and features, which ranged from interviews of Inklings subscribers to foreign exchange columns written by European students.

While the editors were making up the paper, Linda Rich and Pam Short, advertising managers, sold ads to help defray printing costs. After the paper had been completed, the circulation staff, under the leadership of Barbara Tayler, distributed the newspapers during the seventh hour classes of Friday. Swamped by the many subscriptions to be mailed, Janie Fodemski, mailing manager, folded and addressed the numerous issues of the Inklings. Many schools across the nation received copies of the paper through the newspaper exchange program.

Excalibur remodeled for convenience and modern appearance

Planning for the 1965 Excalibur began early in the summer when Editor LaVeda Longfellow and Copy Editor Candy Murray traveled to the University of Tennessee where they learned the characteristics of a good yearbook. With the onset of the fall semester the editors proceeded to select an appropriate theme and plan for an Excalibur chock full of changes and improvements. As staff members sifted through scores of photographs in search of a picture which would be perfect for an "impact" effect, silent thoughts were often, "How did I ever get myself into this?" However, once the deadlines were met and long night sessions were done away with, spring training sessions were held for future staff members. The retiring editors were presented with awards and the 1966 editors were announced at the Publications Banquet in May. With the arrival of the new Excaliburs at the annual Autograph Dance, a year of hard but rewarding work was completed.

in athletics

Avid interest, keen competition, and total dedication spark the varied athletic activities. A total of eight varsity sports compose the athletic department. The Bulldog teams won some thrilling events this year; they also lost some tough ones. The main objective of the sports program, however, is not to acquire a long list of victories but to awaken a competitive spirit in both the participants and spectators.

Footballers post 2 wins—7 defeats;

Homecoming victory highlights season

The Bulldog gridders posted a disappointing record as they failed to turn the trick many times this season. Ten returning lettermen and a host of new varsity talent composed a team that appeared to have potential. Opening the season against the Trojans of Highland in the Highland Football-O-Rama, the Hubsters were edged out by a close score of 7-6. For their first Calumet Conference game, the Bulldogs traveled to Merrillville, only to return unvictorious, losing 19-0. In the home opener, however, the Bulldogs beat arch-rival Lowell in another close game, 7-0.

Tragedy then set in as the Bulldogs dropped their next three conference games to Calumet 25-12, Dyer 14-6, and Griffith 33-14. Led by Bill Walls and Bob Narris, the team avenged their earlier loss by downing the Highland Trojans, 35-26. The Portage Indians, the Bulldogs' only remaining Calumet Conference foes, proved to be more than a match for the Hubsters, inching out a victory, 21-20. The 13th and 14th ranked teams in the state were yet to be played. Hobart, a consistently fine team, swept by the Bulldogs 25-6. The Hornets of Lew Wallace also enjoyed a large victory at the expense of the Bulldogs, winning 20-0.

reserves end season
with one victory

Series: With yelps of glee, team members Rusty Yarnell, John Mecklenburg, and Rich Bennett rejoice as a touchdown is scored. Right: Pensively taking in the game from the sidelines is guard Gary Poorlberg.

Despite a disappointing record—one win, seven losses, and a tie—the reserve football team showed some promise for next year. The reserves were a second half ball club all year. Coming hard after a generally slow start, the gridsmen usually outplayed their opponents during the last two quarters but were rarely able to overcome the lead built up by the opposition.

Coch Kyes' freshmen gridgers fared better, however, posting a record of two wins, one defeat, and one tie. These boys played inspired ball all season, never letting up. While the reserves were primarily a second half team, the freshmen played balanced ball for all four periods, and this extra effort made the difference in the final score.

Returning letterman Bill Bonner sets the pace for the Bulldogs as he sprints for the finish line.

Harriers successful with eleven wins, only four defeats

The 1964 cross-country season was a success as the Harriers posted an 11-4 record. Juniors Scott Shafer and Tom Banser paced the chargers in average time. Other stand-outs were Bill Bonner, Al Bednar, Andy Kacmar, Tom Hefner, Jim Falkiner, and Dan Conquest.

The season started with a disheartening setback as the Bulldogs fell 27-28 to the perennially strong Hobart team. The harriers then trounced Chesterton 17-44 and Dyer 15-50 but were defeated by Calumet. Against Griffith and Portage the Bulldogs split honors as they fell to the Panthers 25-30 and beat the Indians 15-50.

Crown Point then swept a quadrangular meet by beating Kouts 25-36, Highland 20-43, and Lowell 19-44. Next to fall at their hurrying feet were Merrillville 20-41 and E. Gary 15-48. Their winning streak was extended to seven as they rolled over Gary Edison 16-47 and Gary Wirt 19-44. In the final triangular meet the Harriers were defeated by Michigan City 26-31.

A successful season ended as Crown Point finished sixth at the Hobart Invitational, second in the Calumet Conference, second at the Delphi Invitational, second in a tie at the sectionals, and eighth at the regionals.

Gymnasts cop second place at state meet

The Crown Point gymnastics team bettered its ranking this year as they moved from third to second place in the state contest. Terry Cox led the Bulldogs at the state meet taking first on the parallel bars, high bar, side horse, and tumbling. A third in free exercise and a tenth on the still rings rounded out Cox's performance which won him the All-Around trophy for his second consecutive year. Other Bulldogs representing Crown Point at the State meet were John Lurtz, who placed second on the still rings, and Steve Golden, who took fourth on the side horse.

The Bulldogs enjoyed a good season with the help of four returning lettermen. In general, free exercise, side horse, tumbling, and parallel bars were the strong points for the gymnastics team as they often came from behind to win the majority of their meets. The Bulldogs reserves posted a record of two wins and seven losses.

Early season winning string jinxed by

"Hoosier Hysteria" again reigned king over the Crown Point fans as they viewed the Bulldog cagers pound to a winning season. Starting the season, the Bulldogs, while trouncing the Hobart Brickies, set a school record for scoring. The round-ballers continued to dominate play with victories over North Judson, Horace Mann, Gavitt, Chesterton, and Lowell. Taking a 6-0 record into the holiday tournament, the hoopsters whisked past Dyer, but were stopped by Merrillville, ending a three-year reign as champs of the tourney.

Behind the leadership of Calumet Conference scoring champ, Charlie Lewis, the Bulldogs clawed to post-holiday victories over Rensselaer, East Gary, Dyer, Merrillville, and Edison. Against the Blazers, the Allisonmen set the school scoring record for the second time during the season.

While posting these victories, the Bulldogs encountered setbacks against Portage, Calumet, Wirt, Highland, Griffith, Noll, and Valparaiso, bringing their season record to 12-8 going into sectionals.

Drawing arch-rival Merrillville in sectional play, the Bulldogs engaged the Pirates for the third time during the campaign. Merrillville emerged victorious, thus ending Crown Point's season with a 12-9 record.

Bulldog grapplers show fair record for building season

A year of building marked the 1964-65 wrestling season as the Bulldogs bottled with only two returning lettermen. Despite the inexperience of the grapplers, the boys managed to pull out a winning season with a record of seven wins and six defeats.

The Bulldogs went into their first meet without the experience necessary to down Portage. Chesterton and Edison were the next two opponents to meet and defeat the Hub grapplers.

The team gained the much needed experience through these meets as they went on to top Griffith, Dyer, Valparaiso, and East Chicago. A letdown seemed to come about when the Hub matmen tied with Merrillville and bowed to Gary Roosevelt.

Coming back strong, the Bulldogs rolled to beat Andean before falling to Lowell and Hommonds Noll. The Bulldogs closed their season on a successful note with wins over Portage and Hammond Clark.

Thinclads reign at sectionals; send two seniors to state meet

The 1964 track squad started out slowly as it lost the first indoor meet to Hammond 51-48 and finished only third in the Crown Point Invitational. However, once the outdoor meets began the trackmen were almost undefeatable. Coach Malcomb Ruby's cindermen won all of their outdoor dual meets by beating Dyer, Gary Edison, Valparaisa and Lawell.

"Beat Hobart" spirit ran high when, for the first time in many years, Crown Point upset the Hobart team as they took the Little Five. The Bulldogs then experienced a setback as they barely missed a first place position in the Hobart and Rennselaer Relays. However, the thinclads romped to a Colu-met Conference championship by setting three new records. They also had the distinction of being the first Conference team to win the Hammond Sectionals. The climax of the season occurred at the regionals when co-captains, Doug Conquest and John Ericks, qualified for the state meet.

Interested fans can help out at the track meets. Mary Rackwell proves this as she supports the team by holding the tape at the finish.

Frosh show promise

Falling under the shadow of a fine varsity track team, the reserve thinclads led on almost dull, quiet season. The only official chance for Mr. Allison's Bulldogs to "show their stuff" was in the dual meet against the Merrillville reserve team. Running all over the Pirate reserve runners, the thinyclads triumphed, 67—42. These boys ran in many home track meets. Mr. Allison and Mr. Ruby entered these boys in every event possible. Their record in varsity was not as excellent as it was this year.

The freshmen opened their season in the Chicago field-house at the Crown Point Invitational Track Meet, where they picked up 18 points in the relays and sprints combined. The Hobart freshmen proved to be more than a match for the Bulldogs, as they downed the Hubsters, 62—47. But the Bulldogs showed great, strong potential in this meet. For the last dual meet of the year, the trackmen traveled to Valparaiso, only to fall to the Vikings, 99½—37½. Helping out the varsity at the Rensselaer and Hobart Relays; however, the frosh accounted for three and twelve points respectively.

Around the turn goes 1964 grad Doug Conquest, running the 440-yard dash during a Calumet Conference meet. Doug led the thinclads to the conference title and their sectional victory.

scrappy hardballers

The varsity team started and ended the season victoriously, but was dealt several defeats between times. The team finished the year with a 9-8 mark giving them a fourth place tie in the Columet Conference. Highlighting the year for the Bulldogs was the selection of Bob Lamphier and Tom Witten to the All-Conference team. Terry Cox and John Schmelter also made the Conference aware of their presence by placing fourth and fifth respectively in conference batting averages.

After an initial loss to E. C. Washington, the Bulldogs stormed back to win six out of their next seven games. Then the tables turned as the handballers lost their next five encounters. The team then closed the season with three victories out of the last four games.

The reserve team had a disappointing season with three victories and six defeats.

Linksmen swing to third place in conference struggle

Paced by four returning lettermen, the 1964 golf team was one of the best in Bulldog history. The linksmen rolled up 26 victories against only seven losses and finished third in the Calumet Conference race.

The team was led by junior Jeff Hershman who copped medalist honors seven times to lead the linksmen in the department. Jeff had an average of 42.2, the best on the team.

Fine shooting by the other varsity golfers, Brice Pavlish, Terry Pettit, Larry McFarland, and Bill Wagner helped to swell the victory total. Each of the linksmen won medalist honors at least once, and none had an average of more than 45.1.

The golfers got off to a quick start by downing River Forest and East Chicago, and were almost unstoppable after that. The Bulldogs defeated Gary Roosevelt, Lew Wallace, Hammond High, Morton, and Clark among others. The fine showing of the linksmen in the Conference race enabled Crown Point to win the Calumet Conference All-Sports championship.

The reserve golf team also posted a fine season. Members of this squad were juniors Jim Hopkins, Paul Fisher, Rick Lindau, Dick Lambert, and sophomore Dave Stonex.

Following the advice of an old adage, "practice makes perfect," is Terry Pettit as he loosens up before a meet.

in faculty

The frenzied world of modern teens overlaps with a large portion of the administrators' world as they strive to provide a pattern for the academic and social development of their students. In addition to the routine tasks of presenting new facts and concepts and answering probing and stimulating questions, faculty members assume many diversified roles as they tutor students, coach athletic teams or chaperone social events.

Helping Mr. Brannock plan his busy schedule are Mrs. O'Neill and Mrs. Pyle. Mr. Brannock is superintendent of Crown Point city schools. He also interviews all school personnel and hires them with the school board's approval.

Administrators set high standards for students

Proficient organization and operation of the city's school system was competently handled by members of the school board headed by Superintendent Robert Brannock. The ever increasing school population in a growing community has demanded a high degree of responsibility. Appointed by the city council, school board members perform various duties ranging from the selection of good faculty members to the allotment of funds which provide the schools with up-to-date equipment and facilities.

Heading the administration of Crown Point High School as he supervised activities of the faculty and student body was Principal Roy Rogers. Running a modern high school presented many challenges as the new year was inaugurated. Specifying rules for the faculty members and students, as well as forming friendships with unacquainted freshmen and transfers was on the principal's agenda during the initial weeks of the school year. One of the most perplexing problems was the presence of the largest freshman class, 406 strong, in Crown Point history. To Mr. Rogers the enrollment of 1588 students signified the heavy responsibility of steering a multitude of lives into channels of success during the vitally important high school years.

Discussing a new policy are school board members Kenneth Knight, Carroll Halley, Robert Brannock, and Paul Rapp.

Supervising and directing activities of students and faculty throughout the day is Principal Ray Rogers.

Available at all times of the day for student needs, as John Schmelter finds out, are Mr. Childress and Mr. Rogers.

Speaking at commencement, Principal Ray Rogers bids the Class of 1964 farewell.

Completing his third year as assistant principal, Roger Childress finds his obligations increasing.

Personnel guide pupils toward rewarding life

"May I have your attention please for the morning announcements." The task of informing students of daily activities was assigned to Assistant Principal Roger Childress. Identified also as dean of boys and sponsor of the Student Council, Mr. Childress provided counsel for students and capably substituted for Mr. Rogers whenever necessary.

Student welfare was the first concern for members of the Guidance Department headed by Mrs. Helen Palmer. The national testing programs and seniors were the primary supervising responsibilities which kept Mrs. Palmer one of the most active women in school. Mrs. Cornelio Wood, an underclassmen guidance counselor and dean of girls, ironed out many perturbing difficulties for students. Acquainting himself with the personalities and individual needs of several hundred freshmen was Mr. Clyde Zeek, freshman guidance counselor. Mr. Charles Lehner was in charge of the complex attendance records.

Secretary Mrs. Marie Olson was charged with the organization of the new report card system while financial problems were confronted by Mrs. Vivian Spencer, treasurer.

School life keeps Charles Lehner occupied as he checks the absentee reports.

Books and supplies can be purchased at the bookstore through the help of Bookstore Manager Mrs. Helen Anderson.

in multitudes

A mass of vibrant personalities passes almost unrecognized through a crowded hall. Primarily through participation in the classroom or an extracurricular activity, distinct individualism emerges in a kaleidoscope of animating dispositions. The scholars and the athletes, the leaders and the followers—these are the individuals within the multitudes grasping for an identity as they search for ultimate goals.

Cheering seniors support the spirit of the class of '65 in the Homecoming parade.

in business

Crown Point is a bustling community populated by nearly ten thousand citizens who patronize nearly three hundred businesses which cater to specific tastes and interests. Modern recreational facilities, including a movie theater, two bowling alleys, two golf courses, and a swimming pool in the planning, provide various relaxation outlets for the vibrant Hoosiers who live in Crown Point, the 'hub' of Lake County.
